

I want to state that I strongly oppose changing the attempt to weaken the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. I pay an extra charge each month to have unlisted telephone number, but I still receive ignorant solicitation calls. Why do I have to tolerate telephone harassment just so the banks, credit card companys, and telephone companies can make some extra money? If my credit card company or bank wants to contact me for legitimate business, they can send me a letter. Please do not let the "big guy" win yet again.
